

INDIA'S POLICY ON THE PAKISTAN-OKAYED TERRORISM

written by Chandradip News24 | December 27, 2024

India's policy on terrorism, particularly concerning Pakistan-OK terrorism, has evolved significantly over the years. The government has consistently maintained a firm stance against terrorism, viewing it as a major threat to national security and stability. The policy is based on the principle of zero tolerance towards terrorism, regardless of its origin or the identity of the perpetrators. The government has taken various measures to combat terrorism, including strengthening law enforcement agencies, improving intelligence gathering, and enhancing international cooperation. The policy also focuses on addressing the root causes of terrorism, such as poverty, unemployment, and social inequality. The government has also taken steps to protect the rights of citizens and ensure a fair and just legal process for the prosecution of terrorists.

India's policy on terrorism is based on the principle of zero tolerance. The government has consistently maintained a firm stance against terrorism, viewing it as a major threat to national security and stability. The policy is based on the principle of zero tolerance towards terrorism, regardless of its origin or the identity of the perpetrators. The government has taken various measures to combat terrorism, including strengthening law enforcement agencies, improving intelligence gathering, and enhancing international cooperation. The policy also focuses on addressing the root causes of terrorism, such as poverty, unemployment, and social inequality. The government has also taken steps to protect the rights of citizens and ensure a fair and just legal process for the prosecution of terrorists.

India's policy on terrorism is based on the principle of zero tolerance. The government has consistently maintained a firm stance against terrorism, viewing it as a major threat to national security and stability. The policy is based on the principle of zero tolerance towards terrorism, regardless of its origin or the identity of the perpetrators. The government has taken various measures to combat terrorism, including strengthening law enforcement agencies, improving intelligence gathering, and enhancing international cooperation. The policy also focuses on addressing the root causes of terrorism, such as poverty, unemployment, and social inequality. The government has also taken steps to protect the rights of citizens and ensure a fair and just legal process for the prosecution of terrorists.

India's policy on terrorism is based on the principle of zero tolerance. The government has consistently maintained a firm stance against terrorism, viewing it as a major threat to national security and stability. The policy is based on the principle of zero tolerance towards terrorism, regardless of its origin or the identity of the perpetrators. The government has taken various measures to combat terrorism, including strengthening law enforcement agencies, improving intelligence gathering, and enhancing international cooperation. The policy also focuses on addressing the root causes of terrorism, such as poverty, unemployment, and social inequality. The government has also taken steps to protect the rights of citizens and ensure a fair and just legal process for the prosecution of terrorists.

□□□□□ □□□□□□ □□□□□□□ □□ □ □□□□□ □□□□ □□□□□□ □□□□□□

□□□: □□-□□□□

□□□□□ □□□□□□□□□□□□□, □□□□□□□□□□□□ □□□□ □□ □□ □□