U.S. President Joe Biden and Russian President Vladimir Putin discussed 'U.S. military operations in Ukraine' during a meeting. Biden stated that the U.S. will continue to support Ukraine's efforts to defend itself against Russian aggression. Putin responded that Russia is committed to a peaceful resolution of the conflict and that any military operations are necessary for the security of the Russian Federation.

Biden further emphasized that the U.S. will maintain its commitment to the principles of international law and the sovereignty of all nations. He noted that the U.S. will continue to work with its allies to ensure a just and lasting peace in Ukraine. Putin reiterated his position that Russia's actions are aimed at restoring peace and stability in the region, and that he is open to dialogue with the West.

The meeting also touched upon broader international relations and the role of the United Nations in resolving global conflicts. Biden expressed his support for the UN's efforts to facilitate a diplomatic solution to the crisis in Ukraine. Putin stressed the importance of the UN's role in maintaining international law and preventing the escalation of tensions.
